HE WANTS TO COME HOME.

He was one of the "Immunes,"
 And they marched him to the times
 They played along the way to Santiago;
 But the first trip that he made,
 For a fortnight he was laid
 On his back with the lumbago—the lumbago

He was one of the "Immunes,"
 He had passed through sickly June
 And lived to cheer his country's glorious banner.

But when the war was over
 And he thought he was in clover,
 He had sixteen weeks of fever in Havana!

He was one of the "Immunes,"
 Singing patriotic tunes
 While o'er the ranks the stars of glory clustered;

But he's no "Immune" believer,
 With the measles, chills and fever,
 And he's anxious out the service to be mustered.

Alden Benedict's "Fabio Romani," which will be presented at the Opera-house Monday, February 27th, surpasses "Monte Christo" in its intensity of action, in its subtlety of plot and in its cause and effect. There are no chasms of sequence that must be bridged by the imagination. It steps immediately upon a high level of intense, active interest, and keeps that level up to the terrific emotional climax which is the submerging of the expiring bodies of the principal characters in the rolling waters of the Bay of Naples amid the crashing thunder of an earthquake and the weird light of an eruption of Mt. Vesuvius, and is a tale of the dead, founded first and last upon the Judas like duplicity of a woman. Mr. Benedict who enacts the role of Fabio, the wronged husband, is praised by the "press" everywhere the Company has appeared, and he has surrounded himself with a Company of more than usual merit. Miss Martha Beauford who impersonates "Nina" the woman who bartered her all for love of gold is an exceptionally fine actress. The remainder of the cast is strong and even. The costumes are rich, and the stage settings are beautiful paintings of Naples and vicinity. Miss Grace Hunter who introduces her Serpentine, Fire and Stereopticon dances between Acts 2 and 3 is the finest artist who has ever attempted the difficult evolutions demanded by those intricate dances.
